Fire & Fury...

Halfway through the fire season with a lull in the fires (thanks to the rain) and return home for local volunteers, the wannabe pundits are out in force trying to bend reality to their view. The coal lobbyists and their financial backers are furiously looking for simplistic answers that prove they’re not to blame. There is an air of hysteria driving the debate, particularly amongst the climate change deniers, a sense of fear and anger. So what are the claims?

It’s not climate change, it’s arsonists.

New South Wales had less than 1 percent of their burnt land in fires started by arson, Victoria even less. Yes, there are arsonists, there always will be, but while they start some of the fires, it’s a complex interplay of environmental factors that give fires their intensity - and all these factors are directly or indirectly linked to the heat in the environment.

The Greens stopped the fire services doing hazard reduction burns.

I’m sure this was meant to be an attack on the Greens political party but, apart from it being untrue, it is really a slander on the fire and parks services. NSW actually managed about 90 percent of their planned cool season burns, a truly remarkable achievement in a year of heatwaves and drought with very restricted times when the complex factors allow relatively safe burns. These factors include the weather - eg heat, humidity, wind and reliable forward forecast; the fuel load and moisture content; and the terrain and available resources. It is a complex task for genuine experts, not armchair experts.

It was just a freak, unpredictable event.

No, ecologists and climate scientists may not have got the exact date, but they got the pending event right, as did the Australian Department of Home Affairs when they did their briefing to the government after the last election. They described what was going to happen in fine detail.

So, where is the leadership in this time of crisis? It’s great to see the outpouring of compassion and the generosity of our neighbours, but let’s use a little caution. We should not let the governments off the hook for their responsibilities, especially in re-instating communal infrastructure and services.

We need a Royal Commission

No, we don’t! We’ve had royal commissions and even now there are recommendations still awaiting implementation. We need to have existing promises acted on - and we need less heat in the atmosphere.

The sounds of the bush at night

by Des Palmer

The following is an account of a night I recently spent in a rough old bush hut on a friend’s property which adjoins the Brisbane Ranges National Park, which is about an hour and a half drive from the CBD. The Brisbane Ranges is in a rain shadow, being naturally dry with steep rough rocky valleys and gullies. Pete’s property is timbered with Yellow Gum (or White Ironbark), Red Ironbark, Red Stringybark and some stately old Yellow Box trees. The understorey is sparse, with occasional stands of magnificent Grass Trees.

I had set my alarm for 4.30am, as it is about a 1 hour 20 minute drive from the hut to the job site I am working on in Truganina, as we were starting at 6.30am this particular day. The Sugar Glider calling just outside the hut had other plans though, and thought 3.58am was a much more suitable time for me to awaken. Whilst I was somewhat grumpy for the first few minutes, it didn’t take me long to realise that’s a fairly pleasant way to be woken. The call of the Sugar Glider is a shrill “yip-yip”, which like so many nocturnal sounds is not loud, but seems to carry a long way.

The first sound of the night was a single bleat of a feral goat, no doubt making a trip down the steep descent to Reilly’s creek, which while not presently running, has many deep clear pools teeming with tadpoles. The feral goat, an introduced species, is a problem animal in the Brisbane Ranges, causing erosion and overgrazing an already sparse undergrowth.

The first bird of the night to call was the Australian Owlet-Nightjar, a tiny insect eating bird which is very common, but like all nocturnal creatures, is rarely encountered unless you are in the bush at night. It too has many varied calls, a rather grating “chirr-chirr-chirr”, but also makes other calls, too hard to describe, but all in a similar pitch.

Next up, the most iconic sound of the Australian bush, one you will hear just about anywhere at night, the Boobook Owl, or Mopoke to most bushmen. He gets his nickname Mopoke as that sounds sort of like what he’s saying, “mopoke,” but not said once, maybe dozens of times before he stops, briefly, then starts up all over again. Monotonous is a word which comes to mind, though in a very soothing sense.

The common Brushtail Possum started up his grumpy, annoying call next, but you all have heard that one so no need to give a description here. Common everywhere, but more so in urban environments where we have created a smorgasbord of treats for them to thrive on, they are treated with disdain by a lot of city folk, unfairly in my opinion, but I know it can cause sleep deprivation when they decide to take up residence in your ceiling.

There was one last sound which could be heard in that remote bush setting that night. To be truthful, I’ve never actually heard it, but it was there alright, make no mistake. Some people who have heard it say it sounds like a D9 Caterpillar at full throttle working hard. Others have likened it to the roar of the king of the African grasslands, the mighty Lion. I think it’s all fanciful conjecture myself, something like the mythical Bunyip. You see, apparently I snore like a bear.

By this time I had fallen asleep, a deep sleep, eurched from a days hard graft (It’s true!)To say I woke up with a start is an understatement, you can probably describe it in other ways to yourself, but I have to keep things polite here. If I’d of been wide awake, this sound would have startled me, even though I would have immediately recognised it. From a state of deep slumber, it took me a good 10 seconds to jerry what it was, and while you might think it’s funny now reading this, hah,hah bloody hah, I was terrified. The last thing Pete had said to me was he hoped there were no Kurdaichya men around, the Aboriginal portent of death. Stories of the Kurdaichya man would really put the wind up my aboriginal friends when I worked with them in the outback many years ago. Now it was my turn. But wait a minute; I know what that noise is, as my dulled brain but were just out of range of it’s piercing beam. Another sites, in the settlement of these four or five animals, which while I can’t definitely identify them, are found.

By now you’ll be starting to think to yourself, what is this joint, a bloody menagerie? But things weren’t over yet. A small herd of grazing animals woke me next, perhaps four or five animals, which while I can’t definitely identify them, are found. From across the valley came the next call, at least 800 metres away, and a short cameo by the star attraction, the Powerful Owl. A slow mournful “Whoo-hooo” slowly rang out in the stillness of the night, the top end predator who feasts on gliders, possums and large roosting birds.

The call came from the same spot Pete and I always hear it from a day’s hard graft (It’s true!)To say I woke up with a start is an understatement, you can probably describe it in other ways to yourself, but I have to keep things polite here. If I’d of been wide awake, this sound would have startled me, even though I would have immediately recognised it. From a state of deep slumber, it took me a good 10 seconds to jerry what it was, and while you might think it’s funny now reading this, hah,hah bloody hah, I was terrified. Fire safety top-of-mind as Knox community responds generously

The bushfire crisis across Victoria and around the country has dominated headlines this summer. Those who have been impacted directly will need ongoing support and care as they deal with the immediate threat and later, as they begin to rebuild.

There are also many who may not have experienced a direct impact or loss but are experiencing bereavement as a result of witnessing this loss of life, land and wildlife.

In this time of great tragedy, we have seen the very best of the Knox community. Council has been inundated with messages from residents looking for ways they can support bushfire relief efforts.

Members of local emergency services, including all Knox CFA Fire Brigades, have attended the fires in East Gippsland and elsewhere, providing on-the-ground firefighting and support, witnessing the horrific conditions first-hand.

Local clubs and community organisations have held fundraisers and collected donations to support impacted families and communities.

Knox City Council Mayor, Cr Nicole Seymour said that the response has been testament to the character of Knox.

“We are a community that truly cares about our natural environment and about each other,” said Cr Seymour.

“The true sense of mateship, generosity and compassion within the Knox community has shone during this time of incredible hardship.”

“Here in the foothills of the Dandenong Ranges, our natural landscape is precious to us and the threat of fire is all too close to home for many.”

“The phenomenal generosity we have seen from Knox locals truly illustrates our community’s willingness to pitch in and lend a helping hand wherever is needed. I thank everyone who has contributed in any way they can during this time.”

Knox Council has also responded to calls for support from impacted municipalities, providing resourceful assistance with response and relief efforts, such as deploying staff to support East Gippsland Shire.

We will continue to work with the Municipal Association of Victoria regarding further assistance required over the coming weeks and months, as the impacted areas begin recovery efforts.

Those who still wish to provide support are reminded that monetary donations are the best way to ensure your contribution goes to helping those affected by the bushfires.

Visit the Victorian Bushfire Appeal website for information on how to contribute.

The fires in East Gippsland have been burning since November and with the fire season set to continue for several months, the generous contributions of those in Knox, across Australia and around the world need to continue to ensure these communities have the resources needed to rebuild.

Cr Seymour echoed this sentiment. “As individuals, we can keep these communities front-of-mind and consider how we can support them on an ongoing basis,” she said.

“As well as monetary donations, choosing to purchase produce and products from East Gippsland is a fantastic way to support businesses in the impacted areas and assist them in providing jobs as their communities begin to rebuild.”

“So when you’re doing your grocery shopping, take a look at the label – if it says ‘made in East Gippsland’, make it your first choice.”

Visit the VicEmergency website for more information and resources on the bushfires and how to provide support.

Fire safety: a year-round focus

The current bushfire situation places a spotlight on our local efforts to eliminate fire hazards and reduce bushfire risk. In Knox, with the Dandenong Ranges on our doorstep, it’s vital that we take strong measures to prevent and protect our community and our natural and built environment from the threat of fire.

Fire knows no borders. Successfully mitigating the risks of bushfire in Knox requires a collaborative effort and partnerships with neighbouring councils, emergency services and other responsible agencies to protect our communities, as well as the many land owners within our city.

Reducing fire risk is about being ready. It’s about preparing our land, our property and our people to eliminate risk factors and respond quickly and decisively.

Some of the ongoing activities coordinated by Council to assess and remove fire risks include property inspections in the Bushfire Management Overlay (BMO), green area and open space maintenance (including controlled burns where appropriate) and our continued Emergency Management planning processes.

Walking the News...

February issue

Happy New Year to all our drivers and walkers. We hope you and your families had a lovely and safe Christmas, and that you all enjoyed your well-earned break.

If you did not receive a new list of Distribution dates for 2020 and guidelines, please let me know and I will be happy to send you one.

The following round is available, if you can assist with these deliveries, please contact me, details below.

Permanent Walking rounds currently available are:

Temporary / Casual walkers: If you can assist with any deliveries on a casual or temporary basis, we would love to hear from you. There are always people away on holidays or temp sick, so if you have any time to assist just once a month, please phone Veronica on 0403 522 308.
2020 has not been the start to the year we would have hoped for.

We have seen much of Victoria affected by devastating bushfires, with tragic loss of life and of property. We have also seen the best of Victoria and of Victorians. In the light of such tragedy we have come together to support those who need it most and will need to for some time yet. And let’s not forget the wonderful volunteer and career firefighters and all emergency service workers who have been on the frontline, our community thanks you for sacrifices you’ve made and we remember your fallen colleagues who’ve paid the ultimate sacrifice protecting communities.

As many of you may have seen, it was a busy time at the end of last year as I announced funding for a number of local schools. The Basin Primary will be getting a $1.44 million upgrade to fix their oval and this came after a strong community campaign. St Bernadette’s Primary will also be starting work this year on a $1.95 million new Senior Learning Building which will replace some of its ageing infrastructure. I was very proud to help secure this. And both Boronia K-12 and The Basin Primary will be receiving $200,000 and $161,000 respectively to deliver outdoor spaces for kids of all abilities and needs, which is so critically important. Every kid deserves the chance to play outside regardless of ability. Plenty more to come as I’ll always back in our local schools to make sure kids get the best start in life.

It is important to touch on the critically important work of the Mental Health Royal Commission, which recently handed down its interim report and the government, as promised, is implementing each and every single one. The Commission is due to hand down its final report by October this year and we will implement every recommendation. I’ll keep you updated on that important work.

Finally, I was pleased to announce recently that the State Government will be helping to deliver a brand new Knox Library located in Knox O-Zone thanks to a $450,000 grant that I was proud to help secure. This will give the library a new lease on life and provide the area with a new and exciting space to learn and connect.

Don’t forget I’m here to help you and your family with state government matters. You can call my office on 9738 0577, email me at Jackson.Taylor@parliament.vic.gov.au or pop in to the office at Mountain High Centre, Bayswater.

Boronia West Primary School

Recently, Boronia West Primary School launched a new era for the school, beginning with a traditional indigenous smoking ceremony. School Principal Jennie Brown is keen for the Boronia community to know that the school has a new uniform, new logo and exciting new direction for 2020 and beyond. Local MP Jackson Taylor attended the ceremony conducted by Julie and Toby Coombes. Staff, students and community members celebrated the new look and the planting of the school learning tree. Vanessa Murdoch from EACH, also pictured, has supported the schools journey through the Aboriginal Small Grants Project and the Journey Tracks program.

Honouring Ramon Cowling: Passionate environmentalist’s generous bequest becomes new bushland reserve

At 23 Stewart Street, Boronia, adjoining Old Joes Creek Reserve, is a 1.5 acre property formerly owned by longtime local resident, the late Mr Ramon Cowling.

Ramon built a house on the property in 1972 and lived there continuously until 2016. An active member of the Knox Gardens for Wildlife Program, Knox Environment Society, Friends of Old Joes Creek and Friends of Chandler Hill, Ramon dedicated countless hours to caring for the plants and other natural assets on his land.

In an interview he gave before his passing, Ramon explained that he “didn’t set out to become an environmental volunteer,” but that it was “a gradual process” that evolved from living on a bush block and learning to identify indigenous vegetation.

Once he had identified this important native flora, Ramon worked tirelessly to safeguard it. As well as his work supporting local environmental organisations, he personally removed thousands of weeds and planted new trees in the area.

Friends and colleagues in local environmental groups described him as energetic and dedicated, saying his drive to continue caring for the land would put many younger people to shame. Ramon himself commented that at 85, he could still “clamber up Chandler Hill,” and many marvelled at his seemingly unending energy to keep returning to the same spots, walking the same routes and consistently maintaining and preserving the landscape.

This work has undoubtedly left a long-term, positive impact on the land, as is evident by its exceptional condition today.

In fact, the property is deemed a Site of Biological Significance, and is home to many local fauna such as Eastern Spinebills, King Parrots and even the occasional Yellow-tailed Black Cockatoo. It also contains one of the only known White Star Bush plants in Knox, which is a rare species in the state of Victoria.

Celebrating Ramon’s legacy

On 18 November 2019, which would have been Ramon’s 89th birthday, Knox Councillors and Council officers joined with Ramon’s friends, family and neighbours to officially open the newly-named Ramon Cowling Bushland Reserve.

Some of his relatives flew in from as far away as New Zealand and Queensland to attend the opening, commenting that they too shared Ramon’s love of gardening and the environment and felt more connected to him through this celebration.

Knox City Council Mayor, Cr Nicole Seymour said that the Reserve would serve as a reminder of Ramon’s generosity and tireless work for the environment.

“The foresight to create a space to preserve, discover and enjoy our local flora and fauna is an incredibly generous gift that Ramon has given to all residents of Knox,” said Cr Seymour.

“We are grateful for Ramon’s many years of dedication and passion for this community and this land, and proud this reserve will bear his name to recognise his contribution.”

The Ramon Cowling Bushland Reserve is now open to the public to explore and access Old Joes Creek Reserve. Council, together with volunteers from the Gardens for Wildlife program, will continue Ramon’s important work maintaining the biodiversity of this area.
By Allan Small
President, The Basin Fire Brigade

I first met up with Alan (Dicko) around 1969 when he began courting Lynda who was best friends from school days with Joyce (my wife). So that’s nigh on 50 plus years of an earnest and great friendship.

Even then he was a sociable, likeable if not larrikin fun guy; an extrovert par excellence. Ever the centre of attention in groups, at parties; he had an innate ability and personality that attracted people to almost instantly feel as if they had known him forever.

As a butcher at that time, he had a natural convivial jocularity that was to last up until his latest days. Ever the humourist, great story teller and avid conversationalist! Dicko made instant friends and acquaintances wherever he went.

As ‘youngsters’ before family, we all had a great time ‘living the life’ as it was then. His special and at time extravagant fondness for ‘special’ motor vehicles was awesome, Holden Monaros, Mercedes Convertible and utes, tractors, Motor Cycles, another Mercedes coupe’ (his pride and joy) with Lynda as passenger, a Toyota Prado and of late a Range Rover. He probably had many more at one time or another of which I cannot recall. It was seemingly usual to see him or have him pull up in something new or different more times than not.

We have memories of an early trip away together with our wives to a sheep property. We stayed in the shearing shed (to Joyce’s dismay and disquiet) among the sheepskins and mice. Lynda and Alan came into possession of an orphaned lamb! So, as we journeyed back, here we are in the three speed, two-seater 1960-1970 type Nissan 4x4 (H 60), Joyce and I in the back with all our camping clobber, sitting up like Jacqui on the ‘mudguard seats’, nursing the lamb as we went. A woolly bully who stayed with Alan and Lynda’s family for years.

I never really found out why Dicko got that ‘clunker’ H60, except that it seemed to fit his penchant for being a farmer, property owner, vehicle enthusiast, which again came to fruition later in his life.

As our families grew up so did his community commitment including with the Masonic Lodge and of course with CFA; supporting the Junior Brigade at Training, and at away competitions as well as being ‘available’ during hours to attend fire calls and responses to away fires. He had a penchant for social and fun activities in which he usually took a leading role.

At various times he took on Officer positions (4th then 3rd Lieutenant. positions and as Secretary in 2010. He also became involved in CFA’s Bush Fire Blitz and Community FireGuard Facilitator programs, positions in which he thrived in presenting and being an integral part of fire education and community advice. A passion in which he fulfilled for some time, being particularly proud to have been able to support communities through significant fire events by providing them with ‘up front’ ‘relevant information’ that they so needed.

Such was his feeling for all things CFA he joined up with the CFA Caravan Club, and we were looking so forward to his company and affable nature which sure would have given extra ‘sparkle’ to our Happy Hour(s).

Since wife Lynda’s passing, Alan sought to ‘seek out’ a change of location/environment; settling in Barwon Heads, taking up transfer to Barwon Heads Fire Brigade, and making many newfound colleagues and friends. He often spoke of the way he was welcomed and accepted into the brigade and how he ‘longed’ to be ‘back on’ the Operational listing. Additionally, he took up bicycle riding, and as he did so easily, found new friends with the same passion and rode regularly with them on the many bike trails on the Bellarine Peninsula. A passion which continued until recently.

Alan (Dicko) was a ‘man’s man’, good hearted, amiable and a most gregarious conversationalist. His innate fun personality drew people to him, with an almost instant recognition of having known each other for eons. His social group-expanse of friends and acquaintances was huge and widespread.

A wonderful family man, supporter of his communities, a giver of his time and expertise to those he knew, and regularly to those he had never met before.

I will miss him dearly, as will those here today. A good man gone from our presence but not our memories.

REST IN PEACE MATE: A.S.

Sharing a joke at Como Gardens with, Lynda, George Hetrel and Jim Van Der Velden.

Alan, ever the proud Dad, with his daughter April Himmelreich and (right) on the Barwon Heads tanker.

Rayner’s Orchard, is the destination on February 12th. We can board the “train” for an hour tour of the various fruit trees, sampling/eating delicious fruit along the way.

Come to the first of our “Picnics in the Park”. Join us at the Tim Neville Arboretum, Feb. 13th. At 5:00 pm. Bring your own food, drink, chair, and whatever you need for a picnic/barbeque. Enter from Francis Avenue. We’d like to see you. In the meantime, all activities are available to you, and only after 3 visits will we ask you to join. Annual Membership is $25.00 per person, for any and all of activities. 4 Meetings and 4 newsletters per year included. No charge for quarterly meetings. Come to the Boronia Bellbirds Senior Citizens clubrooms, this month, full members. This, in my opinion, is still a chicken-feed amount considering what is available to members.

Knox U3A Annual Meeting

Friday 29th November saw Knox U3A wrap up its 2019 year with its Annual general meeting. The administration was pleased to see that more than 140 members attended, which is something of a record for recent years. President Stephen Damm chaired the meeting and welcomed all attendees. The usual preliminaries were completed. President Steve Damm, in what he stated to be his last President’s report, summarised the year past, and prognoses for the future.

With the organisation standing at a membership of 1400 at the time of the meeting, and with a curriculum amounting to some 140 different courses and activities, Stephen pointed out that the most critical issue facing Knox U3A in the immediate future is that of space. By far the largest volunteer organisation in Knox, we just seem to keep growing, and as long as that trend continues, space is going to be an issue. Our occupation of the Carrington Park facility twelve months ago alleviated the position somewhat, but there is more work to do in regard to that venue. The proposed re-development, by Knox City Council, of the Fair Park precinct, still very much in the planning and consulting stage, represents a very positive possibility for our future viability, and we are watching (and assisting in) developments in this project very keenly. It is recognised that whatever development does ensue, there will be a period of some inconvenience for U3A, but it will be worth it.

Financially U3A is in a reasonably robust position. A small surplus for the year was announced, commendable as our major fund-raiser of previous years – the U3A Art Show – did not materialise. As the U3A fees have not been altered for the past five years, the members approved an increase effective from the 2021-22 year to $70 a year for full members. This, in my opinion, is still a chicken-feed amount considering what is available to members.

Stephen went on to thank a number of long serving tutors, pointing out that, although the membership is important, it is the tutors who are the life-blood of U3A. A number of 10 and 15 year service awards were presented.

Stephen then declared all positions vacant and the office bearers for the forthcoming year were appointed/elected. Lawrie Gaylard was elected President unopposed, with David Kerriker as vice-president. Brigitte Salwat stepped into the Secretary’s shoes with Beverley Clement the new Treasurer. A full list of office-bearers can be found on our website, www.u3aknox.org.au.

Incoming president Lawrie Gaylard paid due tribute to Stephen Damm for his dedication to his position and to the position of Knox U3A over the years. I doubt that anyone would disagree. Well done Stephen. The nearby photo shows outgoing President Stephen Damm on the left, and incoming Lawrie Gaylard on the right.

Finally, this will be my last report for the Community papers, as I have also relinquished my position as Publicity Officer after five years. I take this opportunity to thank the editors and volunteers at the papers, who have always accepted my scribblings for what they are, and turned a blind-eye to my disregard for deadlines.

Boronia Bowls Club
A proud day for our club - $830.10 raised for Cancer Council

A sausage sizzle held prior to a game was well attended by Saturday pennant members, other club members as well as Rita Lynn and her family.

This event was staged to celebrate George Lynn’s involvement with our club as well as supporting current and past members and their families who are affected by cancer.

Our catering crew; Margarette Bennett, Lesley and Dick McGregor and Bob Williams excelled themselves with burgers and snags.

Ian McLean’s daughter-in-law donated a number of boxes of chocolates she received this week from children she taught - these items were sold to further swell the kitty.

Well done all I can see George smiling now - he loved his bowls and Boronia Bowls Club.

What goes around...

Amongst the many acts of generosity and support in the wake of the terrible bushfires, the kind generosity of Helga epitomises the communal desire to help.. As she could not go and fight the fires herself, she chose to make a very significant donation as her contribution.

Helga came to Australia as a child and, despite some serious illness, has had a rewarding life in her adopted country - so in a time of crisis she wanted to “give back” to her fellow Aussies and her country.

Recognising the significance of the donation, Vickie Linaker from The Basin Fire Brigade bought her a bunch of flowers to say thank you.

Helga was overjoyed with the floral “thank you” and hand delivered letter.

Boronia Bowls Club
has undergone a major facelift.

A new disabled toilet has been installed and the magnificent new decking, across the front of the club rooms, make this venue as good as any in Knox.

To experience this state of the art entertainment precinct, book your next function, meeting or get together at Boronia Bowls Club.

This month’s profile is about a local boy who never forgot his roots and has become a great business success story and one of the nicest guys I have ever met. Everything that he has done in his family life and business life is a result of who he is, the salt of the earth, a genuinely nice guy.

Tony is the owner of EAL and AW Transport (windows) and runs businesses in Melbourne, Sydney and Brisbane. His Melbourne operation runs 50 trucks, with 120 employees and it started with nothing. He is also the owner of the Acorn Bar and Restaurant in The Basin. He said one of his biggest things is sponsoring clubs, he sponsors over 10 clubs in the local area including The Basin Football Club and The Basin CFA providing a monthly fundraising item and emotional support.

Tony lives locally in Montrose, attended Montrose Primary School then went to Mooroolbark Technical School which became Mooroolbark Secondary College. (now called Yarra Hills Secondary College) He got into the local Montrose footy club. He played as a youth and in his later years became President of the Montrose Football Club from 2014-2018. You don’t get more local than that!! When I ask him what have been the changes he has seen over the years in the community he says, sadly, “It is harder now than it used to be, it doesn’t have to be so hard, it used to be a lot kinder place in the past.” He really sums up himself and the best of people when he says, “If you can put a smile on someone’s face, then the world would be a better place.”

Tony is a 17 y.o. truck jockey, then became a dispatch clerk and learnt to manage people and trucks, working at every level of this industry. He told me he learnt his work ethic from his dad who took him every Saturday when he was 15-17 years old to work with him in his job in industrial refrigeration work. His dad was the best dad, he told me, as he was his mentor but has sadly passed away.

When he came out of Mooroolbark Technical College he worked for Safe Burn Incinerators where he further learnt the work ethic, cutting and painting drums. He has successfully run his transport business for over 30 years. To start and make a successful business he says you need common sense, be a people person, definitely have knowledge of and background of the specific industry, and he certainly had all of these qualities. “You’ve gotta have a great team of employees they are your best asset,” said Tony, and he should know, with very little staff turnover for many years. He speaks about his employees as his family. He told me he most admired Tony Vassallo his head accountant who is like his dad- a real father figure and is his business rock, a wonderful asset and friend. With a sparkle in his eyes he tells me he is excited and delighted to recently go in partnership with his brother Brett in the transport business, “It’s ace!”

When he talks about the Acorn Bar and Restaurant he explains, “…the reason I got it was I love people and love doing things for the local community. I like to make people feel good.” As he did as a child. Yarra Hills Secondary College along with his son Daniel, who has made him a proud grandfather to his three grandchildren. He also tells me about his much loved Mum who he says was always there, always taking him to the games (footy). What stood out most for him with his Mum was his birthdays, to this day she makes it special, they always go for four days!! With such a full life I asked Tony how he relaxes. He smiles and says, “I just go to my pub and enjoy the company.”

AUSTRALIA’S PLIGHT

As we move into a new decade
Most Australians suffer the drought –
Summer hits with cruel retort
And some families go without!

To add to this situation
When temperatures start to soar
And winds rise in indignation,
Fires rage on more and more!

Is this due to climate change?
Or is it something more?
Some say to ‘put it down to God’,
But this we can’t ignore!

Our leaders need to act right now
For those who follow on!
WE need to take initiative
Before all we have is gone!

Eastwood Golf and Bowls Club is committed to furthering the progress of gender equality in sport. Over the last couple of years Eastwood has been a local leader in achieving change and moving away from the imbalances that affect sporting clubs in many aspects around the country.

The board and the members have recently made constitutional changes to reflect community expectations, standards and needs.

With the guidance of Golf Australia, the Even Par subcommittee are working alongside the board to evolve with the times and develop a less traditional club culture. This resolve is to ensure we are more inclusive in a way which empowers all members and visitors of all abilities to participate fully within our club. Eastwood will continue to be a progressive and forward thinking club to ensure its longevity.
NEW STATION PLANS FOR THE BASIN CFA

The Basin Fire Brigade has been prioritised by the CFA for a new station as the Victorian Government works to ensure hardworking volunteers have the facilities they need to protect and support the community.

Minister for Police and Emergency Services Lisa Neville announced that the project has been added to CFA’s five-year capital works program priorities, with the project being scoped and funded next year.

CFA is working closely with the local council to identify suitable land for the proposed new station.

This follows a community campaign by Member for Bayswater Jackson Taylor to get this guarantee, with 803 people signing a petition which was passed on to the Minister. The Basin, which has a long, proud history, provides critical fire response to the Dandenong Ranges, which is one of the highest risk bushfire areas in Victoria.

Founded in the 1920s, the brigade’s members work tirelessly all year round to keep the community safe and respond to emergencies. The brigade has over eighty volunteer members and as they continue to grow, so too does the need for a new station to cater for that growth and to recognise their importance to our community and ensure they have the best facilities possible to get on with their job.

The brigade is more than 90 years old, having supported the local community and Victoria during major emergencies, including Ash Wednesday.

The Victorian Government is committed to giving CFA volunteers the facilities and equipment they need.

Unaffordable Utility Bills

The cost of electricity, gas and water has increased at a far greater rate than wages and Centrelink payments. Financial counsellors and community service workers find when essential services become unaffordable, people respond by going without heating, food, medical care and other needs. The alternative is disconnection and being pursued by debt collectors.

The good news is the Victorian government has responded by introducing legislation to reduce energy retail prices and the rate of disconnections.

The Victorian Default Offer (VDO) for electricity came into effect from 1st July last year. The price of the phone your electricity retailer.

If you are not on the default offer and would like to be, the rate of disconnections.

Best Offer: Victorian energy retailers must inform you if you are on the “Best Offer” for your individual circumstances. This information must be on your bill every 3 months for electricity and 4 months for gas.

Energy Fact Sheets: Your retailer must provide an energy fact sheet to help you compare energy deals and estimated costs for different households. They are available on the retailer’s website or you can phone and ask them to send you one by email or post.

Payment Difficulty Framework: That is all good, but what if you still can’t afford your ongoing electricity or gas usage? Your retailer must contact you if you are falling behind and allow you to pay what you can for 6 months. The amount owing may be accrued as a debt to pay after the 6 months. The retailer must provide information and advice on how to reduce your usage and what grants and concessions are available.

Disconnections: You cannot be disconnected if you are being assisted through the payment difficulty framework, you owe less than $300, or you have a complaint open with the Energy and Water Ombudsman. Energy companies must consider your circumstances such as loss of employment, relationship breakdown, family violence, illness or unexpected expenses.

Utility Relief Grant Scheme: Low income households can access payments of up to $650 per utility over a 2 year period. If the household does not have a gas account, the amount is $1,900. One of these criteria must be met: accommodation cost is 30% or more of income; unexpected decrease in income; unexpected increase in cost for essentials; family violence.

Energy Mentor Scheme: Energy payment mentors required. Utility Debt: You have been unable to pay for your utility usage and the debt has been passed to the collections department or a debt collector is contacting you. Financial counselling is a free, confidential and respectful service providing assistance and information to anyone unable to pay their debts. Financial counsellors can contact your utility company and other creditors if that is what you require and negotiate an achievable outcome.

$50 Power Saving Bonus Payment
This is available from the Victorian government by visiting their website compare.energy.vic.gov.au. The offer expires on 30th June, 2020.

The last few months have been incredibly difficult for our country as we experience some of the worst bushfires in our history.

I would like to thank all of our incredible firefighters (including dozens from our own local CFAs) who have assisted in the efforts and, in many cases, put their own lives at risk to help the community. As you would be aware, the PM took the unprecedented step of calling up 3,000 Defence Force Reservists to help the fire affected areas. Already 2,600 are supporting Operation Bushfire Assist. This is in addition to a similar number of full time defence personnel who have been providing support in the field, at sea, in the air and from defence bases across fire affected regions. Many have been assisting since September. We thank them all for their service.

The PM has also indicated that the government will be there at every step of the way as we rebuild. An initial $2 billion has been committed for the recovery efforts. And if more is required, more will be forthcoming.

Other specific steps have also been taken including additional mental health services for affected communities; payments to volunteer firefighters for lost income; emergency relief payments for individuals impacted; a new $50 million fund for wildlife care and protection; and an initial $100 million in funding to support affected farmers.

Locally, the Knox community has been incredible in assisting through donations of food and water and shelter for animals. Many of you have financially donated to various organisations. Thank you for your contribution. At the present time, our local CFAs and many organisations are no longer accepting donations of goods as they cannot cope with the sheer volume donated. However, if you are able, the best way to help is through financial support. Please visit: www.cfa.vic.gov.au/donate1 to do so.

Hon Alan Tudge MP
Living with Parkinson’s disease

Some years ago I was diagnosed with Parkinson’s disease. I was also told then that I had a kidney disease.

At the time I had no idea what that meant to me, and how it would affect me in my future life. All I knew at the time was that I was always very tired after a day’s work, and my right hand was shaking at various times of the day. My right leg would also shake while I was sitting down at times. I was always very tired after a day’s work, and I have been visiting a neurologist.

I spoke to my doctor and he sent me to a neurologist. At the time I had no idea what that meant to me, and how it would affect me in my future life. All I knew at the time was that I was always very tired after a day’s work, and my right hand was shaking at various times of the day. My right leg would also shake while I was sitting down at times. I was always very tired after a day’s work, and I have been visiting a neurologist.

I have been suffering with osteoarthritis resulting with me having metal joint replacement in both my knees, both my shoulders and my two large toes. I went to my osteopath for treatment for that condition and it was she who first suspected that I had Parkinson’s disease.

I spoke to my doctor and he sent me to a neurologist for tests. He ruled out stroke and brain damage and he eventually told me that I did indeed have Parkinson’s disease. PD cannot yet be cured and sufferers get worse over time as the normal bodily functions, including breathing, balance, movement, and heart function worsen.

The disease is caused by the slow deterioration of the nerve cells in the brain, which create dopamine. Dopamine is a natural substance found in the brain that helps control muscle movement throughout the body. At times I seem to hesitate when I try to stand, or pick up an object. I tend to lose my balance as the day goes on and at times I have to walk with the aid of a walking frame.

In 1985 I went to a routine check-up and the doctor told me that I had kidney disease, and I have been visiting a specialist for thirty-five years. My kidneys completely failed about six months ago so I am on a dialysis machine every Monday, Wednesday and Friday for four hours a day for the rest of my life.

Parkinson’s disease most often occurs after the age of 50, and is one of the most common nervous system disorders of the elderly. The disease is caused by the slow deterioration of the nerve cells in the brain, which create dopamine. Dopamine is a natural substance found in the brain that helps control muscle movement throughout the body. At times I seem to hesitate when I try to stand, or pick up an object. My kidneys completely failed about six months ago so I am on a dialysis machine every Monday, Wednesday and Friday for four hours a day for the rest of my life.

I have tried to be positive about the condition by eating all the right food that doesn’t contain potassium. I am 66 years old and I’m still enjoying life and life is still good. I keep busy reading, writing and studying history. I love my four children and my eight grandchildren. I’ll just face what happens to me in the future when it happens. There is so much information out there on the internet and there are lots of support groups on social media (Facebook, etc.). We only get one chance at life so it’s so important for everybody with an illness or a disability to make the best of life while you can.

Danny Nolan

Back in early 2016 during my summer holidays I was walking through the AEC arcade to Boronia Square where I discovered a unique little shop with a figure of a zombie nurse with a sign around her neck stating: “Come In. We’re Dead.” It was an offer too good to pass up.

Inside were all kinds of assorted weird and wonderful oddities taking up all the floor space and covering the walls. In this tiny shop no bigger than a small bedroom, all decked out in black behind a small counter sat Danny Wale among his collection of horrors. Above the door a small television played scary movies. Danny, an artist who creates busts, figures and other objects from his favourite horror films, had only recently opened the shop, suitably named Gore Fx before Christmas.

When I first met Danny, he had only just recently opened the shop as he run out of space at home to store them, but until he got somewhere larger, he would still design and build his artworks at home. Because he was still working at his chosen trade as a carpet layer, he only opened the shop Saturdays and sometimes on a Friday or Thursday after work for a couple of hours.

I was impressed, as I always am with people who try something a little different and I respect anyone who demonstrates a flair artistically. I dropped in on the shop for a chat and view any new items over the next year and learned that Danny had supplied props for music videos and plays and did make up effects for paid commissions. It came as a bitter blow when the tiny shop was broken into and items worth a considerable sum were stolen. In a strange twist, such readily identifiable items were never found or appeared on the usual sites for sale or disposal up to this day, leading to the theory it was done by someone who really wanted what they stole or, on the downside, realised they could never get rid of such unique things that they were destroyed.

Undeterred by this set back, in September 2017 Danny relocated into the shop opposite. A larger frontage allowed not only for a showroom (and a place to actually make a cup of tea) but a workshop area where he could implement one of his dreams to start up classes to teach people how to sculpt and paint, with an emphasis on the horror genre.

The classes proved to be a great success and each class was booked out within days. During this time Danny also married his long-time girlfriend Skye – on Halloween of course - and started organising horror themed events, all the while keeping up his day job.

I have found so comforting in my journey with God - Matthew 11:28-30. It says: “Come to me, all of you who are tired from carrying heavy loads, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke and put it on you, and learn from me, because I am gentle and humble in spirit; and you will find rest. For the yoke I will give you is easy, and the load I will put on you is light.” Jesus was talking here of the troubles we encounter that seems insurmountable, but when these troubles are handed over to God in prayer, admitting that we can’t go it alone, our burdens are made lighter and we can see more clearly how to move through those troubles. My prayer is that your travels through 2020 will be lighter when you journey with God!
Walking Football kicks off again at U3A Knox

Are you or your partner bored, don’t get enough exercise, can no longer play the sports you used to love or just want to try something new?

Want to have plenty of laughs, enjoy camaraderie, make friends and kick a few goals?

Why not try indoor Walking Football. This is a modified version of soccer for both men and women over the age of 50 and you don’t need to know how to play.

It is low-impact, team-based exercise wrapped in a whole lot of fun that aims to provide physical & mental health benefits, social connectedness and the benefits of ongoing physical activity. It’s a great mood lifter and helps improve balance, mobility and coordination.

There are very few rules to remember, basically no running, tackling or high kicks but it’s still challenging enough to make it competitive especially when your team is winning and you kick a few goals.

Our first term begins on 29 January 2020 so why not come along, chat to the team members and have a go before you commit.

If you would like to give it a try, enrol now online or via the U3A Office after January 28.

Walking Football is just one of the 168 courses and activities that run most weeks at U3A Knox. Last year we had 1460 individual members participating in these. If you are over 45 and no longer working full time you can join them. The courses and activities are listed on our website www.u3aknox.org.au

Have a look and when you find something you like, enrol & join online.

Otherwise visit our office at 1a Park Boulevard, Ferntree Gully Office Hours 9.30am- 3.30pm Mon - Fri

What a difficult start to a new year!!

Are you feeling abandoned? Is anyone ‘listening’ to the heartache you’re feeling? Have you, or loved ones, been affected in some way by the devastating fires over the last two months? IS anyone listening to you as you ask for action in regard to compensation or climate change? Is the whole situation just too big for you to comprehend?

You’re not alone! And we don’t have the answers at Boronia Road Uniting Church but we DO have a weekly worship service that will give you HOPE and offer you comfort and friendship as you work through all the issues concerning you at this time.

Every Sunday Morning at 10am…we have a user-friendly worship service…… kids activities, adult input encouraged, lots of singing – all followed by morning tea and fellowship.

Our Minister, Rev Ann Scull is supporting us here in Boronia as well as offering counselling and friendship to those in East Gippsland who have been affected directly by the bush fires.

OUR CHURCH is open each Tuesday, Thursday and Friday morning from 10am till 12 noon. During these times we can offer friendship and a listening ear. Feeling lonely? Come along for a chat. We are also able to help out with food parcels (as long as you live in the Knox area and hold a current Health Care / Pension card) or really inexpensive, but good quality, clothing. Our volunteers will always make you feel welcome.

Every Tuesday morning each week from 10am to 12noon you are invited to drop in for a cuppa & chat. NO COST and everyone is made very welcome.

On TUESDAY, 25th February you can join us for BRUNCH from 11am….. a new initiative in 2020.

There is always LOTS happening here! Special functions during the next few months…..

On Sunday, 1st March, we are hosting a Concert at 1.30pm by ‘New Horizons Concert Band’.

Cost will be $15 for the concert (which will include a delicious afternoon tea).

Our NEXT Makers and Growers Market…. will be held on 4th April 2020. To book a stall or make enquiries contact irnesmith2@bigpond.com

Every Friday morning we have a Music Together session for pre-school children and their carers. Each fortnight on a Friday morning there is a Craft Group.

You can play 500 once a fortnight on a Wednesday night……

For more information about us check out our web page www.bruc.com.au , or like our Facebook page, www.facebook.com/BoroniaRdUnitingChurch or phone the church office on 9762 6732.

Religion: The current Zimbabwean Constitution allows for freedom of worship and freedom of association. There is separation between state and church. Christianity is the major religion, observed by more than 80 percent of the population. It was introduced with British colonisation. The other 20 percent observe Islam, African traditional religion and Judaism.

Major tourist attractions include Victoria Falls, Hwange National Park, and the Great Zimbabwe Monument or Ruins from which the country derives its name.

World Day of Prayer will be held at: Boronia Road Uniting Church, Cnr Boronia Road & Zeising Court, Boronia (opposite St Joseph’s Catholic Church)

Everyone is welcome to attend and join other local churches to celebrate together.

Some more information:

Zimbabwe’s major industry is mining of natural resources such as coal, gold, platinum, copper, nickel, tin, clay, and diamonds. Some of the country’s produce is corn, cotton, tobacco, wheat, coffee, sugar cane, peanuts, and raises sheep, goats, pigs, poultry and cattle.

Zimbabwe exports cotton, tobacco, gold, ferro alloys and ivory; it imports machinery, vehicles, chemicals and fuels. However, with political upheaval, the economy of Zimbabwe has shrunk significantly and most of the industries are closed. Zimbabwe’s currency has gone from hyperinflation, to being abandoned in favour of the US dollar, to being reinstated in an effort to stabilise their own currency, all in recent times.

The country of Zimbabwe has been in the news recently. The newly elected president has been sworn in after a tense and disputed election. Churches and ecumenical organizations are actively promoting peace education and civic awareness to engage the communities in peaceful participation. Prayer vigils, election monitoring and dialogues between civil society and the government were organized to have political transparency, and to promote healing in a country that searches for peace and reconciliation.
